Soil, Slope & Sunshine

The Yakima Valley Appellation

An appellation, or AVA (American Viticultural Area), is a designated geographical region that possesses unique climate, soil and physical features which distinguish it from surrounding areas. This combination of soil, slope and sunshine influences the growth and character of the grapes, which in turn produces wines distinctive in personality to that appellation.

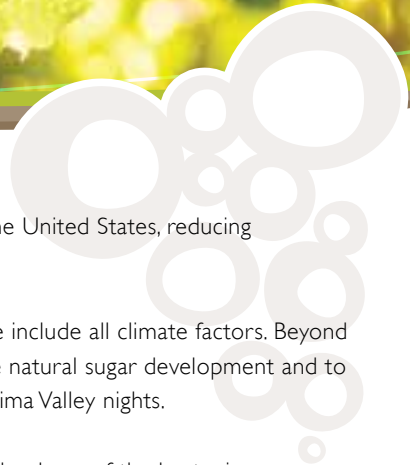

Established in 1983, the Yakima Valley was the first Washington State AVA, and is now home to more than 75 wineries and over one-third of the state's vineyards, boasting over 12,000 acres of premium wine grapes.

Here's a look at how soil, slope and sunshine come together to produce great wine in the Yakima Valley:

SOIL When growing wine grapes, it is important that the soil is loose enough so that water does not accumulate in the ground, causing a slowdown in flavor development in the fruit. The Yakima Valley was sculpted by a number of ancient wrinkles formed in the land when volcanoes cooled and sank, leaving behind a large basalt layer in the earth. Prehistoric floods then aided in creating optimal soils as they layered the basalt with deposits of fine silt, loam, loess and cobble—each offering the proper drainage necessary to keep the vine's vigor under control.

SLOPE The sunny slopes of the Yakima Valley foothills are blessed with a long growing period, extended daylight hours, and cool evenings that yield bold, hearty and luscious world-class wines. Hot summer days and cool nights provide the perfect growing environment. This large fluctuation between daytime and nighttime temperatures is considered key by winemakers and wine grape growers to attain intense varietal character. The Valley's cold winters kill pests that are prevalent in other, milder wine growing regions throughout the United States, reducing the need for chemical repellents on the fruit.

SUNSHINE Within the framework of sunshine we include all climate factors. Beyond sunlight, we look for sufficient irrigation to promote natural sugar development and to the temperature-moderating effects of the cool Yakima Valley nights.

Because the Yakima Valley Appellation is blessed with a bevy of the best wine grape-growing conditions, nearly every type of wine grape can be successfully grown in one or more of the Valley's regions—from the cool weather Riesling
to the warm weather
Cabernet Sauvignon.

Growers

If You Want to Get the Dirt, Get to Know the Farmer

The following is a list of growers responsible for the outstanding grapes that make award-winning wines throughout the Pacific Northwest:

Airport Ranches
Artz Vineyard
Beeman's Backacres Vineyards
Boushey Vineyard
Chandler Reach Vineyard
Copeland Vineyard
Desert Hill Vineyards
Dineen Family Vineyards
DuBrul Vineyard
Elephant Mountain Vineyards
Fairacres Vineyard
Goose Ridge Vineyard
Grand Ciel Vineyard
Harrison Hill Vineyard
Hogue Ranches
Jacona Vineyards
Klipsun Vineyards
KB Vineyard
Kestrel View Estate Vineyards
Lonesome Springs Ranch
Naches Heights Vineyard
Oasis Farms
Olsen Vineyards
Red Willow Vineyard
Roza Mystica Vineyards
Sugarloaf Vineyards
Tapteil Vineyard
Three Wilsons Vineyard
Tudor Hills Vineyard
Upland Vineyards
Wilridge Vineyard

Ask any Yakima Valley winemaker and they'll tell you: great wine begins in the vineyard. The art of winemaking is to allow the land to express itself in the grapes, and the grapes to express themselves in the wine. That's why many of the Valley's winemakers settled here. Great soil and great weather are the basics of great wine. Meet a few of our growers:

LARRY PEARSON – TAPTEIL VINEYARD

Tapteil Vineyard is located within the Red Mountain AVA and includes 25 acres of Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot and Cabernet Franc. First planted in 1985, Tapteil is planted on Warden silt-loam soils between the elevations of 750 and 900 feet.

TODD NEWHOUSE – UPLAND VINEYARDS

Upland Vineyards is located entirely within the Snipes Mountain AVA in the heart of the Valley. Farming grapes since 1968, four generations of the Newhouse family have maintained the Upland legacy that started over 90 years ago. Originally planted by W.B. Bridgman in 1917, Snipes Mountain is considered the birthplace of Washington Wine.

LEIF OLSEN – OLSEN VINEYARDS

Olsen Vineyards are planted on several different sites in the east end of the Valley with a wide variety of slopes, aspects, and elevations. The family has been farming since 1908, planting their first vineyard in 1980. Leif and his cousin, Martin, are fourth generation farmers continuing the legacy of passion for their land and crops.

PATRICK RAWN – COPELAND VINEYARD

Copeland Vineyard, planted in 2000 at the western end of the Valley in the Rattlesnake Hills sub-AVA, consists of 26 acres of south-facing vineyards. Patrick is the third generation to farm the land that was originally planted in apples by his grandfather in 1954. The vineyard is named for a family member who was an early settler in the area.

Yakima Valley Vineyard of the Year

DuBrul Vineyard

“Hugh and Kathy Shiels’ DuBrul Vineyard on a south-facing slope above the Yakima River in the Yakima Valley—also our 2007 Vineyard of the Year—is a difficult site to manage, with many “microclimates” that require careful monitoring. But vineyard manager Larry Dolan works with the Shiels and their crew to ensure each vine gets what it needs. The result: some of the most elegant yet approachable wines in the state—from acclaimed wineries such as Owen Roe and Woodward Canyon—are made from these Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Cabernet Franc and other varieties.”

- SEATTLE Magazine announcing DuBrul Vineyard as “2009 Vineyard of the Year”

Hugh Shiels

Hugh and Kathy Shiels planted their steep rocky hillside in 1992, taking care to make sure every varietal was planted so the soil and aspect would create the best expression of the vine. The ladies of their crew painstakingly shape every vine each growing season to provide optimal exposure to sunlight, while from below the low-vigor soils combine with a deficit-irrigation regimen to produce small berries, small clusters and low yields.

Over time, DuBrul Vineyard has established a reputation for growing superb grapes. The Shiels sell to wineries in Walla Walla, the Seattle area, and Oregon. DuBrul fruit is used both in vineyard-designated bottlings and as the ingredient that can lift a blend to the next level. In 2001 the Shiels started retaining a small portion of their grapes for their estate winery, Côte Bonneville. The winery was named a Wine Spectator Rising Star in 2008, and their 2004 Côte Bonneville DuBrul Vineyard was named 2009 Wine of the Year by SEATTLE magazine.

Visiting and tasting in the Yakima Valley is a treat any time of the year. But a weekend trip during one of our Association-sponsored events can be especially memorable.

RED WINE & CHOCOLATE Feb 13–15, 2010

Chocolate lovers, this weekend is for you! The natural affinity between dark chocolate and red wine is no secret. During Red Wine & Chocolate event weekend, each participating winery pairs sumptuous chocolate confections with their very own remarkable red wines.

SPRING BARREL TASTING Apr 23–25, 2010

Besides enjoying the predictably sunny weather in eastern Washington, Spring Barrel Tasting lets you get a jump on tasting and purchasing some of the best wines in wine country. Sample yet-unfinished wine right from the barrel and gain insight into the artistic process at each winery.

CATCH THE CRUSH Sept 25–26, 2010

Join the Yakima and Columbia Valley wineries to celebrate the harvest at the 24th annual Catch the Crush. Each winery offers its own celebratory events, including grape stomps, harvest and crush activities, tours, free-run juice, hors d'oeuvres, live music, and—of course—wine tasting.

THANKSGIVING IN WINE COUNTRY Nov 25–28, 2010 (Thanksgiving Weekend)

The event that has become a Northwest tradition! Enjoy Thanksgiving in Wine Country as Yakima Valley wineries open their doors to celebrate the season.

Purchase a Premier Pass for any of these special event weekends and experience a variety of specialty food & wine pairings, library tastings, and tours not available to the public. Passes can be purchased online in advance at a discount or at the door—see our website for details. The Premier Pass is the only Pass exclusively designed for event weekends, and the only Pass recognized throughout the entire Yakima Valley.
